- Emergency Notifications

During any emergency that requires the distribution of important information to the public or specific audiences, the Norwood City Health Department partners with Hamilton County Public Health to provide many communication systems, including Hamilton County Public Health's Health Alert Network (HAN). The HAN is a system used to notify members of the community about public health emergencies or other pertinent health information. Messages are typically delivered via fax or e-mail. By participating in Hamilton County Public Health's HAN, you will receive information that may be vital to the health and safety of Norwood City residents.
